on almost Indefinitely. - Pittsburgh Cor.

A yellow fever microbe has the appearance of three joints of sugar-cane. I got them from Washington in a glass tube, that somewhat resembled gourd. Tho tlny microbes are placed in the big end, but by looking at it you could never tell that there was any thing but air in it. The small end is sealed up, and the microbes are lu there, though apparently dead. Some microbes live in such places for twenty

We will suppose, now, that we want to look at some of them under the microscope. Upon the little glass slide we put a drop of golatine, of the concambric needle, and after beating It to destroy all microbes that may be in the air, we quickly break the seal of the glass tube and lasert the needle, drawing it out quickly and resealing the neck of the tube.

We insert the needle into the drop of gelatine on the slide, and quickly germs or microbes that may be floatlng about in the air. Then we place the silde under the microscope. In fully aroused from their Rip Van Winkle sleep, and now you see what curious things they are.
